

Invitation

The Ministry of the Popular Power for University Education, Science and Technology (MPPEUCT) is pleased to invite you to the 1st International Fair of Science and Technology "Jacinto Convit", which will take place in Caracas, from November 30 to December 3, 2017.

In the event we hope to bring together experts and organizations in the area of science, technology and innovation (CTI) to expose their products and services, in order to strengthen the commercial and strategic alliances signed by the Bolivarian Government with other countries.

The goal is to project and capture investments that allow the consolidation of the national industry in the priority areas of development, as well as giving scientific-technological support to the processes of generation in the value chains to our primary wealth.

Another objective is to establish alliances in the productive sector, both public and private, through business round tables, as a mechanism of direct communication between the parties.

The event will have a program of informative conferences on several topics.

We hope to have their participation and to be a protagonist in this fundamental gearing of the national economy, with a prospective vision that will facilitate the empowerment of the country towards new realities, which will guarantee the active incorporation of all the actors involved in science and technology.

Detailed event information, as well as the registration to participate, will be available on the website: www.fictec.mppeuct.gob.ve

Receive an affectionate greeting;

Hugbel Roa

Minister of the Popular Power for University Education, Science and Technology
